APPLICATION GUIDE

Christian students from any university are welcome to apply to be visiting EAI students, and especially from universities in North America associated with the Council of Christian Colleges and Universities (the CCCU) and the International Affiliates of the CCCU. (You can find out if your school is a Member or International Affiliate of the CCCU through the links on the EAI Application page online).

In addition, however, Tokyo Christian University has partnership agreements with a select group of universities and colleges. These partnership agreements greatly simplify the application process for students from those universities as well as the acceptance of credit, payment of fees, etc. The partner universities at present are: Asbury University, Belmont University, Biola University, Campbellsville University, Covenant College, George Fox University, Huntington University, Judson University, Lee University, Olivet Nazarene University, Spring Arbor University, Taylor University, Waynesburg University, and Wheaton College.

In the application form, you will find references to partner universities and to students from partner universities. If you are from one of these universities, then those references will apply to you, simplifying the admissions process and giving you preferred admission to the EAI program. Other students are, as stated, welcome to apply.

APPLICATION ELIGIBILITY

- Applicants should have at least a 3.0 GPA.
- Applicants from a partner university should be enrolled at that college or university at the time of application and during their time of study at Tokyo Christian University. An agreement with each partner university states that, while attending EAI, the student will continue to be enrolled at the home university, provided that the student registers for enough credit hours at EAI to be considered a full-time student at the home university.

PARTNER SCHOOL INFORMATION

Each of the partner universities has a process for approving its students to study at TCU. It is particularly important for students to obtain this approval. It allows TCU to bill the partner university for the cost of the study at EAI. This makes the partner school the guarantor of the student's fees. The student and/or the student's family are then exempt from having to provide proof of financial ability to pay TCU's bill (does not apply to students from Biola University; Biola students should contact Biola's Study Abroad Office for information). It also means that some or all the student loans, grants, etc. (each partner school has its own policy) can be applied towards the cost of study at the EAI of TCU.

For students from the partner universities and colleges

Have you have obtained the permission of your home university to participate in the EAI program? Yes No

Please give the name, title, and email address of the official at your home university who has approved your study in the East Asia Institute of TCU.

Your signature at the end of the application means that you certify that you have obtained the appropriate approval from your home university.

STUDIES AT TCU

Students attending the EAI during the fall semester (the normal EAI semester) are automatically enrolled in four primary courses (see the EAI website). Students can add additional courses and/or ask to substitute other TCU courses for primary courses. This may be done without any additional charges or fees. The additional course options are listed after primary courses on the EAI website. Students may also contact the EAI office (eai@tci.ac.jp) to ask about late additions to the list of additional courses.

<Adding Courses>

If you wish to add hours beyond the four primary courses, please state in the space provided which additional course(s) you wish to take.

Do you understand that this may require more on-campus study time at the expense of time otherwise available to explore Japan off-campus?

Yes No

&lt;Replacing Courses&gt;

If you wish to replace one or more primary course with another course from TCU's curriculum, please state in the space provided which course(s) you wish to replace, which course(s) you intend to replace it with, and a brief explanation for doing so.

Brief explanation

The agreements with all partner schools guarantee that any EAI course will transfer back to the student's home school at least as an elective. However, it is the student's responsibility (especially from your study abroad advisor and/or your registrar's office) to find out which general education, major or minor, or other requirements at the home school any particular EAI course may fulfill. That decision rests entirely with the student's home school.

The rules governing the adding and dropping of courses may be found on the "Curriculum Rules" page on the EAI website (under "Courses"). Students may change their requests for adding and/or replacing courses until the formal cut-off date for adding and dropping courses (usually 1 to 2 weeks after the semester begins).

DESIRED PERIOD OF STUDY

EAI has two semesters: the Fall Semester and the Winter/Spring Semester. The Winter/Spring Semester divides into two blocks: the Winter Block and the Spring Block. The costs for the two semesters are somewhat different as are the lengths of time. For the current price of each semester at EAI, see the "Cost" page on the EAI website. For the dates of each semester, see the EAI Home page, or contact the EAI Admissions Office (eai@tci.ac.jp).

Applicants should note that the East Asia Institute's "primary courses" and "field trips" are currently offered only in the fall semester. In the winter and spring blocks, visiting students may enroll in regular TCU courses and use weekends and holidays for private trips. There are enough courses taught in English to allow a full-time load in the Winter/Spring semester. Most EAI students will, therefore, apply only for the Fall Semester. EAI students are welcome to study for a period of up to one year at TCU. However, students from partner universities who wish to study for a longer period than just the fall semester or who wish to study at TCU only during the Winter/Spring semester must gain the explicit understanding of their home universities to do so. This is the responsibility of the student. The partnership agreements are intended to apply primarily (and for some institutions only) to the EAI program in the fall semester.

- Fall Semester                       Winter/Spring Semester

If Winter/Spring Semester:     Both Winter & Spring Blocks

Please be aware that additional fees will apply to students who live in the family dormitory, and that married students who choose not to eat in the campus cafeteria will have this expense deducted from the overall program cost. Please also note that the family dormitory is not furnished, and students are expected to provide their own furniture at their expense. Please consult with the TCU Admissions Office if you wish to live in the family dormitory.

Please indicate here any preferences or concerns regarding housing.

Please note that the above personal statement of your health is a preliminary and unofficial statement only. It is sufficient to complete the application. Both a TB skin test and a recent (within six months) chest x-ray are also required. (You may submit only the doctor's summary of the chest x-ray. The x-ray itself need not be sent.)

After a student has been accepted, TCU will send the student a form called, "Health Record and Examination." The student should ask the medical professional to fill out the "Health Record and Examination." It will be the student's responsibility to see that the completed form and the results of the x-ray arrive at the EAI office in Tokyo in a timely manner.
